

Irma Aguirre
February 18, 2014

Operator

Oh, what a pleasant morning!
Ah, what an unpleasant morning!
There is barely a day Mr. Watkins can go
Without saying these words to start the day

It is windy? Is it cloudy? Is it raining? Is it snowing?
How's the weather Mr. Watkins?
Nonsense, it does not matter; warm or cold, a go for a walk it is.
Don't forget to read along the way!

Eh... you don't look well Mr. Watkins.
Are you feeling alright? Are you sick again? Is it the small pox?
Nonsense, it does not matter; theatre: 7 P.M. you better be there!
Say you're ok; say you're alright; it's nothing but a fever
Go on; say it; even if you're fainting.
'Cause a day without theatre would be very un-Watkins

Theatre, oh theatre!
Mr. Watkins just can't get enough of you!
It can be A.M. it can be P.M.
But up in stage you'll be sure to see him
Performing or rehearsing; nothing will startle Mr. Watkins;
Not his cold, not his flu; not even a malicious tornado will do!

New day: unsettled.
Walk and read; study and write
Is there ever a day you take a break from all that?
It's a fine lovely day today; How about we do something else instead?
Non-sense! –there's no such thing as that
You see, my life is not a routine if that's what you think.
Nothing is ever tedious; nothing is ever boring;
I just love theatre!

...

But I guess you already know that